The Economic Impact of Community Colleges

EMSI's economic impact study for the American Association of Community Colleges shows the net total impact of community colleges on the U.S. economy was $809 billion in 2012. That's equal to 5.4% of the nation's gross domestic product. Put another way, the added income created in the U.S. through increased student productivity and the spending of international students supported the equivalent of 15.5 million jobs.
